One of the most welcome announce ments of the theatrical season is that Augusta J. Evans' novel, "St. Elmo," has been dramatized, and will be seen in has been drainalized, and will be seen this city at the Howell Theater on Feb. 5th. This particularly fascinating story of Southern life by a Southern author generations been one of the most popular by a native writer, and for this section of the country, above all others, possesses extraordinary interest. The play is the work of Neil Twomey, an able writer and master of stage technique, under whose personal supervision the production is made. The scenic production is elaborate, and the east has received particular care in its selection.

B. J. Drew, railway section foreman at Francis, was attacked with an axe Wednesday in the hands of a colored employe named Major Jones. There had been some dispute between Mr. Drew and the negro over a debt, when the latter seized the axe and made the assault. Had it not been for men standing by Mr. Drew would undoubtedly have been killed. Sheriff Kennerly caught Jones within two hours of the assault and has him in jail. He will be arraigned this morning before Justice Warshall for assault with intent to murder. B. J. Drew, railway section foreman

Deputy Sheriff Pete Hagan predicts that East Palatka is soon to become a great commercial center, and that Pagreat commercial center, and that Pa-latka proper, the metropolis and county-seat will not be in it. Mr. Hagan said: "The bridge is all right but it ain't going to be used as much as some peo-ple think. That whole stretch of country on the east side of the river will soon be one continuous stretch of cultivated farms, reaching from Federal Point all along the whole river front to Point all along the whole river front to Hastings, and East Palatka will be the trading point for these people. Several large wholesale houses have already determined to locate at East Palatka. and soon its wharves will be busy with trade. It's going to outstrip Palatka as a commercial center." Mabel Paige Co. To-Night.

Mabel Paige and her fine company are becoming so strongly popular with the theater going people of Palatka that she is giving to this city a full propor-tion of her time.

The company will appear again to-night at the Howell Theater in "The Marriage of Kitty," a play which filled the Duval Theater in Jacksonville with an enthusiastic audience. The Timesnion says:

"Kitty is the daughter of a county so-licitor, who up until his death is thought to be quite well off, but after his affairs are straightened up, Kitty finds herself very poor. She consults a lawyer, who is also her godfather. He suggests to her many ways to make a living for her-self which do not meat the self, which do not meet with her ap-proval, and he as a last resort suggests Referring to the Putnam county member of the state democratic executive committee at the meeting in Jackson ville on Tuesday, the Times-Union says: "Hon. A Series of Receptions.

Society ladies of Palatka have indulged Society ladies of Palatka have indulged in a round of delightful receptions this week in honor of Miss Edna Crill, whose marriage to Mr. Charles Philip Cooper of Jacksonville has been announced for next Wednesday. Miss Crill's is one of the most charming personalities in the younger social set of this place, and the ladies have had special delight in paying graceful tribute to her nonularity.

Image of the entire list of registered voters the names of the persons known by the board to be dead, or whose death can be satisfactorily shown to the board. On motion of Commissioner Rogers, the board not having the authority to revise the registration roll at the present time, Mr. Calhoun's request was graceful tribute to her nonularity.

The first of the receptions was provided by Mrs. Geo. E. Gay, and was attended generally by the society ladies of the city. This occurred on Tuesday afternoon. The Gay home was tastefully decorated for the occasion, and the refreshments were dealer in kind and refreshments were dainty in kind and service. The game of the afternoon was "500," in which the prize went to Miss Walton of Alabama, a brooch. An embroidery bag was the prize for the honor guest, Miss Crill.

Wednesday menion Mes. De. W. H. granted.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Dr. W. H. Rosenberg and her daughter, Mrs. DeWitt Clinton Vorus of Birmingham, entertained at six-hand euchre. The honor prize for Miss Crill was a beautiful censury of the registered voters on the roll, and the registered voters of the registered voters of the roll, and the registered voters of terpiece. The first prize went to Mrs. J. H. Haughton and the second to Miss Mabel Wilson.

On Wednesday night a party of Miss Crill's former schoolmates and more intimate friends drove out to the Crill home in a wagon, and gave the coming bride a "kitchen shower." In this party were Mesdames Vorus, Vickers, Holmes, Ramsaur, Misses Bassett, Kennerly, Bailey and Gardner, and Messrs. Ramsaur, whose regular pay was more than six times that of a sargent and therefore his check would be correspondingly larger.

The amount of the checks included interest for nearly 12 years, as it is that long since the Palatka boys marched to the front in defense of American honor and Cuba libre. Their experience on the hot sands of Tampa, the scrub plains of Fernandina and the piercing blizzards of Huntsville is but a memory.
